FOREWORD

As a person who is registered legally blind, the issue of avoidable sight loss is deeply personal. I have witnessed significant change in both disability inclusion and eye health over the last decade, but the scale of global disability inequality is stark.

Eye care is still unaffordable and unavailable for too many people around the world. The system is currently failing some of the most marginalised communities and the impact and consequences are profound. Sight is integral to wider health issues and facilitates better educational and employment opportunities.

We need to make that argument loudly, clearly and repeatedly. And we need your voice to do that. Only through collective action will we achieve the systemic change that is needed and improve the lives of billions of people and help them fulfil their full potential.

IAPB's community is full of extraordinary people and organisations who are fighting for change. We share insights, learn from each other, push for innovation and results. We are all united and driven by the goal to end avoidable vision loss and deliver quality eye health care for all.

The time for radical collaboration is now. We need to tear apart all that separates us and work together towards collective goals, valuing our unique, different, expertise and capability, but unapologetically moving as one unstoppable force. This can be achieved, and it will.

THE TIME FOR ACTION IS NOW.

JOIN US.

CAROLINE CASEY

IAPB PRESIDENT AND FOUNDER, THE VALUABLE 500

THE CHALLENGE

There are 1.1 billion people around the world living with the consequences of sight loss because they do not have access to eye care services. Without change, this will rise to 1.8 billion people by 2050.

The increase in non-communicable diseases and ageing populations combined with lifestyle, technological and communication changes present a new burden on eye health. The myopia epidemic is growing and is affecting younger and younger people. At the current rate, it is estimated that half the world's population will have myopia by 2050. We are also facing challenges around ensuring care for an increasing ageing population.

Eye care is still under-resourced and unaffordable for too many people. Of the 1.1 billion living with sight loss, 90% live in lower and middle income settings. These are some of the poorest and most marginalised in society.

The challenge is more complex than ever before, the numbers are greater and the inequalities are only increasing.

THE OPPORTUNITY

We can prove that eye health facilitates better education opportunities, productive work, physical and mental health and equality. It is the golden thread that runs through wider development and is key to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

By 2030, we want to see a world where:

- No-one experiences unnecessary or preventable sight loss and everyone can achieve their full potential.
- Eye care and rehabilitation services are accessible, inclusive and affordable for everyone, everywhere, whenever they are needed.
- People understand the importance of caring for their own eye health and demand access to services, free from the weight of any social stigma.

WE HAVE AN URGENT WINDOW OVER THE NEXT DECADE TO URGE OTHERS TO TAKE ACTION AND END AVOIDABLE SIGHT LOSS. THERE HAS NEVER BEEN A MORE CRITICAL TIME TO MAKE OUR VOICES HEARD.

THE VOICE OF GLOBAL EYE HEALTH

WHAT WE DO

A public health challenge as large as sight loss, which affects over 1.1 billion of us, requires collective action by governments, private sector, civil society, professionals and the wider public.

Representing a unique and unparalleled global membership from over 100 countries, IAPB is a not-for-profit charity, solely focused on delivering the collective goal to end avoidable sight loss and driving awareness of eye health around the world.

IAPB members range from international charities, eye hospitals and academic institutes through to professional bodies and corporates. On behalf of this diverse and unique mix of organisations, we provide a powerful, unified and trusted voice on an issue that affects every human on the planet.

We work tirelessly to ensure our sector gets the political, health and development priority it needs and deserves.

We work through collective action at the intersection of public health, development and markets.

We ensure that our members' voices are heard at the highest levels and fight to unlock political will and financing while also changing perceptions and policy.

“Eye health is a broad issue with a range of organisations working in many different geographical regions and across different issues. IAPB brings together all these organisations under one banner and helps present a global, united voice for the sector.”

CASE STUDIES

“IAPB has succeeded in delivering key advocacy asks that have had an enormous impact on the eradication of needless sight loss at both the national and global level. Crucially they have also helped leverage significant financing to the eye health sector.”

ELIZABETH KURIAN
CEO, MISSION FOR VISION

UN GLOBAL RESOLUTION ON VISION

IAPB represents our members at the World Health Organisation and the United Nations, working with them to coordinate policy while using our platform to fight for political, financial and development action on eye health.

We have built relationships and created positive change over many years, culminating in the first ever United Nations General Assembly resolution on vision in 2021. It elevates the aspiration for good eye health and creates the opportunity to push the role of vision in broader development, education, health and productivity ambitions.

WORLD SIGHT DAY

World Sight Day is the biggest eye health campaign in the year and provides a unique moment for members to come together to help raise awareness around the world.

Over the 4 years of the campaign, IAPB's campaign #LoveYourEyes has reached important audiences, including those in the world of work, parents, schools and policymakers, with World Sight Day serving as a cumulative day of action. The campaign has received over 25 million pledges to Love Your Eyes! World Sight continues to be celebrated around the World with coverage in nearly 60,000 articles, with 1.2 billion media impressions.
